Your passions are now coming out. You can come out of hiding, you can open up to who you truly are - and if you let yourself trust you, you are going to discover the healer and the teacher and the facilitator within you. You are going to discover who you really are and how you can be here at this time of change in consciousness on Earth.

Now, obviously I could talk on forever and ever, but I would like to bring this to the conclusion of my point - that the greatest challenge that I see with this group is the issue of trust. It is also prevalent with nearly all humans on this planet - but I look at this group and I say raise you energy, raise your issues and simply a lack of trust. The lack of trust comes from these heavy overlays that you bought into. You have taken them personally, they caused you to forget who you are and how simple things can be.

It's time to come back to trust and - well it's easy to say - learn to trust yourself implicitly, it can be a challenge. For I would like to start with this group in this room right now and allow this idea to expand to the other - but I want to plant the seed right here, right now.

As you know, I love to create groups, bring people together and then back out. I love to create an energy that is real and that is expanding. To this group right here today, I would like to create a Circle of Trust - begins in this room, right here - and if you choose to step into the Circle of Trust, you become part of this not so secret society, but an open society. But if you choose to be in the Circle of Trust - it means that you are going to trust yourself once again.

It will be challenging at times - it is the old built in alarm systems that cause you to not trust yourself. But when you are at the time of challenge, difficulty or you get into your mind too much - remember the Circle of Trust, remember to trust yourself. If you choose to step into the Circle of Trust, loving yourself and honoring yourself - you then become part of a new consciousness and a new potential. This potential radiates out to everyone in the city, in this country, the lands of Europe and eventually all over the world, and it creates the new potential of humans trusting themselves.

The lack of trust is an artificial energy - there's no reason not to trust in yourself. The lack of trust, the division and lack of clarity are caused by so many external forces as well as internal. If you would choose to step into the Circle of Trust today, trusting yourself, the energy radiates out to other humans, it radiates out to companies - I am not just talking about Hungary right now. Your participation in the Circle of Trust can influence a new company that has just started. Even if they don't know about the Circle of Trust, somehow the energy will make its way to them.

And instead of developing a business plan based on competition and based on squeezing the profits, based on taking advantages on others - that company now, if chooses to resonate with the Circle of Trust, can operate from trust, rather than deception. That company can operate from wholeness and abundance, rather than from financial battling or corporate corruption.

If you choose to step into the Circle of Trust today - trusting yourself first and then allowing it to radiate out to this land - it can effect politicians, the new political party, it can effect those who are in government office, came in to serve other people, but somehow along the line got caught up. It can remind them of their own trust.

Trust is not a word that you necessarily associate with government, but it should be an intrinsic world for any government organization - they should have the trust of people, the ones they serve. Today you choose to step into the Circle of Trust - and that energy can radiate out to governments, even the religions, to landlords, to someone who operate the market, a grocery store. Circle of Trust can spread out to those who are currently working on new technologies, working to heal others. It can remind them to trust themselves.

Starting from this moment, this day, with our first Circle of Trust in this world, we can change potential for tomorrow, lift the overlays of this country, of this continent and of this world.

It starts with a breath - a conscious breath - and then a choice.

You choose to live the rest of your days in trust of yourself - not in some guru, not in some grand descended master - but in yourself.

You choose then to share the energy of trust with others and let it spread to this land, replacing what was once or an hour ago - and now transmute it into a deep, pure and sacred TRUST.

This conversation will resume tomorrow - tonight enjoy life.
